Superyachts meet in seasonal style

The sparkling waters off Surin Beach were dotted last week with some of the largest motor and sailing yachts around Southeast Asia in a recent rendezvous where Captains and crew met to race, play marine games and dine at the gourmet tables set at the upscale resort, The Chedi.

Asia Superyacht Rendezvous is becoming a major international sailing event sponsored by Feadship, one of the world’s leading builders of luxury yachts.

Organizers Charlie Dwyer, Captain of the Yanneke Too, and Gordon Fernandes, MD of Asia Pacific Superyachts, invited owners of the world’s most elegant yachts to sail to Phuket for the competition.

“We want to promote Phuket as a hub for superyachts in Southeast Asia. Currently, many of the world’s largest private vessels spend the winter months tied up to a dock in the cold and rainy Mediterranean when they could be enjoying sailing in the beautiful surroundings of Phang Nga Bay,” commented Gordon.

Yachts that joined in the festivities had to be at least 30 meters in length.

Thirteen yachts responded to the invitation, a mixture of motor and sailing yachts, including the S/Y Silolona, a wooden yacht built in Indonesia by an American woman with a local crew, who performed traditional music in native costumes for a gathering of participants.

The Asia Superyacht Rendezvous 2009 began with an elegant cocktail party at The Chedi and was followed by the Feadship Challenge where selected crews from each yacht were given a small bag of materials, including string and canvas, to fashion a small sailing boat.

Then the completed model boats were placed in a narrow gutter of water and “blown” down the course. Eleven teams competed but the M/Y Vie Sans Soucis proved to have the winning boat.

Andy Dowden drew the course for the next day’s race and Simon James, who co-ordinates almost every regatta in Thailand, was in charge of the competition.

Five sailing yachts competed against the winds, the currents and each other to sail the triangular course in front of Surin Beach. After three hours of competitive sailing, S/Y Thalia passed first over the finish line.

That same evening, participants enjoyed Chedi hospitality at a beach dinner and party. “The rendezvous is an informal event where international superyachts and their crews can gather for some elegant yet informal fun. We are already in the planning stages for next year’s Rendezvous on December 17 and 18, 2010,” said Captain Charlie.
